A NEW EDUCATIONAL SCHEME. TOPEKA, Kan., Oct. 29 .- The charter of an institution to be known as the industrial Bible school has been filed with the secretary of state in this city, and is probably the most original conception that has ever been formulated in the state. The idea originated with Chester E. Pond of

The charter states that it is proposed to establish "an institution that shall rise sublimely above all human creeds and sectarian differences; that shall disown and discourage all that is vain, faise, foolish and harmful, and shall accept and teach whatever is good and true and useful, whether it comes through heterodoxy or through orthodoxy; where young men and women who will try to do just right at all times and in all places can complete and women who will try to do just right at all times and in all places can complete some desired course of study and become skilled in some branch of productive industry, by their own personal efforts—an institution that shall be intensely individualistic, intensely socialistic, and that shall ever atrive to bring out and crystalize the pure, the beautiful, the divice, in all men and in all things, that shall guide and propel all departments by wisdom grounded in love; that shall make the Bible the leading text book that shall not look at or study text book; that shall not look at or stildy the Bible through some human creed or religious belief, but shall look at all creeds and belief through the Bible; and that in and belief through the Bible; and that in every possible way shall endeavor to promote perfect bodily health and to develope in every man and woman, young or old, the ideal Christian life and character—an institution that shall practice in every department all the goodness and purity that it preaches, and shall endeavor to lift every one connected with it higher up in the scale of being."

The first directors 'are [Chester E. Pond, Charles M. Welch, M. A. Pond, Carrie V. Morgan, Gustave Reiche, Lydia L. Reiche, H. H. Lanham, J. W. Angested and Virginia M. Nellis, all of Topoka. The school is to be built at or near Topoka.

A DISEASE UNACCOUNTABLY PREVA-

The prevalence of ailments attributable to miasmatic poison in the air that people breathe, and the water they drink, is well nigh unaccountable. Not alone in pesti-lential swamps, badly drained surburban districts, and marshes exposed to the sun's rays by the receding tide, is this scourge of humanity found. Even in great cities, healthfully located, skillfully sewered well looked after in every respect in a sanitary way, we find malaria. Its presence is often inexplicable, but its attacks are always preventable. The protector is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The eradicator bears Stomach Bitters. The evadicator bears the same name—a name known to thou sands throughout our broad land and elsewhere as a synonym of relief preven-tion and cure of the insidious disorders in its abominable phases—chills and fever, billous remittent, dumb agne and ague cake, as well as others. Nor is the Bitters less effective for indigestion, kidney com-plaint, billiousness and rheumatism.

THE M'KINLEY BILL.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—A meeting of the importers of this city was held this afterneon which had under consideration the McKinley bill. James M. Constable presided. In calling the meeting to order Mr. Constable said the purpose was to give expression as to the legality of the McKinley bill, and he explained that the omission of section 20 in the engrossed copy of the bill. section 30 in the engrossed copy of the bill which was signed by the president, very possibly invalidated the entire act, though the omitted section was parsed upon by both the senate and house of representatives. Secretary Daniel McKeever told how he had talked with numerous law yers, and it was nearly a unanimous opinion among them that the act was unconstitutional because of the omission of the A committee was appointed to make an investigation and report at a sub-sequent meeting. THE ENGINEERS.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 29.—There will be no general federation of locomotive engineers with brakemen, firemen, conductors and other railway employes. As stated last week, a majority report favoring the federation presented at the brotherhood convention in this city was defeated. Since that vote was taken the convention has spent considerable time discussing the question and have finally decided not to federate with any other organization. The matter has been left with each of the forty-five organizations to act as they may deem proper. They can, if they wish, join hands with other trainmen when differences arise between railroad companies and the employes.

A French traveler in Corsica found himself pursued by a band of brigands. soon stumbled upon the border of a lake. There was no path around it; it was impossible to swim across, and the brigands were behind him. Necessity quickened his wits; he hastily cut with his knife one of the long, hollow reeds that grew on the shore of the lake. Then he stopped up his ears and nostrils with wet clay from the margin, took the reed in his mouth and waded out into deep water, where he remained submerged, with upturned face, just allowing the upper end of the reed to project above the surface.

On came the brigands, following the traveler's tracks to the water's edge. brigands remained waiting on the shore for some time, but no sign of the traveler appeared. They concluded at last that he was a sorcerer, who had caused himself to vanish into thin nir. Then they disappeared, and the Prenchman, who had been under water all this time, breathing through his tube, came out. He managed to keep under cover and make his way to Ajaccio in safety.—San Francisco ArgoAT THE SUMMER DANCE.

IT IS A PLACE V/HERE MAN'S IM-PORTANCE IS RECOGNIZED.

Some Observations Upon Its Humors by a Young Woman Who Apparently Has Been There-Half Grown Boys and Callow Youths in Great Demand.

This is the age of woman's triumph. She has demonstrated her ability to administer functions of honor hitherto relegated to man's dominion with dignity and sagacity, It is safe to predicate from her attitude that the coming woman will rule the na-tions while the coming man rocks the cradle, and to prophesy from her success that the nations will be governed more wisely and the craille swayed less scientifically than at present.

But notwithstanding all this there is one place where the scepter has not depart-ed from Israel, where man rules triumphant in all his pristine superiority, where the smallest boy out of kills and in sers is at a higher premium than the fair-est, wisest lady in the land, who might, with her beauty, put Venus to the blush, and with her knowledge cover senior wranglers with confusion. And this place where old traditions are restored and man is acknowledged master is at the summer hotel dance.

The sweetest kind of a woman's woman who is full of love and sympathy for her sex, to whom girls delight in confessing their secrets and women confide their sorrows, finds little profit or pleasure in dancing with a woman.

MEN IN DEMAND. There is something solemn in the atmosphere of the summer dance, something pa-thetic in the air of feigned and hysterical hilarity among the women who wabble round the hall in pain, like mechanical tops when the spring is broken or the works need mending.

Thrice blessed the woman who has a husband whom she can coax out of tennis shoes and into pumps, out of the smoking room into the ballroom. How that man is smiled upon, victimized, cajoled into making a martyr of himself, and dancing himself into a fit of apoplexy with all that woman's friends.

Happy is the girl with a younger brother, even if his mustache is in the pin feathery stage, and his voice as little to be depended upon as a worn out accordeon, if only he can sprawl through a waltz and maintain an unright position.

Envied indeed is the woman whose little son, in sash and knickerbockers, has been taught to step a measure in time and order rille, and there is confusion among the ranks of dancers. The one self sacrificing young man who dances dashes about the room, out in the office, down in the billiard room, mopping his brow and seeking the persuadable man to come and fill out the sets. The girls familiar with the figures tie handkorchiefs about their arms and invite other girls to dance, the mothers hunt up their small boys, and after a while the procession moves with an average of one man and one small boy to a set.

THE UNQUESTIONING MATRON. Little questions the fair dame who at home deliberates most carefully before es-tablishing the most formal of friendships with new acquaintances the history or present station of the man who is presented to her as a partner for a waitz. There is a relief in the steady clasp of the manly arm, the firm touch of the masculine hand, that renders it immaterial whether he weighs out butter by the pound or handles a tailor's goose and shears when vacation is over if only he takes the step she learned in waltzing, and will give her one or two good turns about the room before all the other girls who cannot get a man to waltz with.

Little does it concern her to investigate in any way his claim to her regard if he who cannot take the masculine part, and when little cliques form, as they invariably do in a summer hotel, each clique jealously guards the girl man almost as seriously as they would the genuine article from ap-propriation by the other factions.

THE DANCE ANALYZED. The summer hotel dance is an admirable wantage ground from which to study the terpsichorean art as modified and influenced by different climates and localities-the wild swoop and rush of the Colorado girl, with the freshness and freedom in its movement that suggests the broad, unbroken prairie and billowy, wav-ROCHESTER, N. In sharp contrast is the slow, stately glide of the Boston belle, subdued and steady and joyless. It speaks of a long line of stern faced ancestors, repressive, taciturn, grave; of spectacled schoolma'am grandmothers who were married late in ife, and trained their children with inflex thie rods of iron according to Scriptural
